U.S. Holiday Death Toll Reaches 253

Safety officials sounded a fresh warning today as fatalities in the long holiday week-end reached 14 in New England and soared to 253 for the the nation. Ideal summer weather continued today and highways were packed with traffic as holiday pleasure-seekers headed for beaches and inland resorts. Weather officials promised temperatures in the low 80's for today dropping to the middle 60's tonight. Tomorrow, they said, would be warmer with rising humidity.

While New England's fatality toll stood at 14, with nine deaths occurring on yesterday's holiday and the others in the five hours preceding it, the National Safety Council in Chicago announced that at least 253 persons had met death in accidents throughout the nation thus far.

A Council spokesman asserted that at the present rate, the complete fatality toll would exceed "by far" the Council's pre-holiday estimate of 275 deaths for the long week-end.

Drowning and auto accidents were responsible for most of the New England fatalities.

Four of the nine holiday victims were children. Two-year-old Michael D. Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Sullivan of Hyannis, was killed as he walked from his home to the beach with his mother and other members of the family.

Iris Laprise, 3, of Manchester, N. H., fell from her grandmother's auto in Hookset, N. H., and was run over by another car.

Allan A. Russell, 5, of Cape Elizabeth, Me., was drowned in Moosehead Lake when he fell off a pier while fishing.

Six-year-old Lyle Raymond, Jr., of Burlington, Vt., was drowned in the Lamoille river near his home while picnicking with his family.

In Brighton, Ezra Redden, 57, was killed in his home in Everett st., when a rifle he was cleaning discharged accidentally.

Michael Mastrodomenico, 44, of Rockland, was killed in Skowhegan, Me., when a bomb exploded during a fireworks display he was supervising.

By the Associated Press

Hundreds of persons throughout the West told today of seeing mysterious sky discs while scattered observers elsewhere in the country said the bright, saucer-like objects zipped high over them in the Independence Day sky.

From Idaho, Oregon, Washington and California and in the Far West, Louisiana in the South, Michigan in the Mid-West, Pennsylvania in the East and Canada's east coast Prince Edward Island came reports of the strange objects first reported over Washington State June 25.

Both ground and aerial observers told of seeing the discs. Early in the afternoon Portland, Ore., police, swamped with calls, issued an all-car alert and within minutes two patrol cars radioed reports that they were watching the discs.

Observers were certain they were not the 24 P-80 jet planes which were high over that city yesterday.

At 2:50 p. m., a group of picknickers at Twin Falls, Idaho, said they saw discs going west. A few minutes later another group was seen and at 3:10 a third group of the discs—the total number was estimated at about 35—was seen also speeding west. Nearly 60 persons were in the observing group.

At 7 p. m., George Astor of Spokane, Wash., said a group of 200 persons observed one disc circle for 30 minutes at Hauser Lake, Idaho, before it zoomed upward and disappeared.

The entire crew of a United Air Lines plane said they saw the discs—"like a pancake standing on end"—eight minutes after taking off from Boise at 9:04 p. m., and kept them in sight for 12 minutes.

Yeoman Frank Ryman of the Seattle Coast Guard photographed a disc—but it appeared in the negative only as a pinpoint of light.

A Los Angeles pilot and his companion were "scared silly" when they saw what they thought was one of the flying saucers moving swiftly north by northeast at 7000 feet, some 2000 feet above their plane.

At New Orleans, Miss Lillian Laulers said she saw one going northeast over Lake Ponchartrain. Port Huron, Mich., also joined the reporting group.

From Summerside, Canada, on Prince Edward Island, came reports of the discs, one was said to be moving south and another southeast.

Nearly all observers agreed the objects—whatever they might be—were round, flat and shiny. How big they were remained uncertain. Dan J. Whelan, Los Angeles pilot, estimated the one he saw at 40 to 50 feet in diameter, while Port Huron residents thought they were small.

Capt. E. J. Smith, pilot of the United Air Lines which spotted several, said "it's hard to judge size unless you know how far away a thing is."

But he agreed with others that he had seen the much-discussed "saucers," and added, "None of us believed in these saucer reports before."

Vt. Grad Held After Co-Ed's Fatal Surgery

A former Dartmouth and University of Vermont athlete and a Peabody medical technician pleaded not guilty in Peabody District Court today to charges arising from illegal surgery which resulted in the death of Carol Conroy, 19, pretty University of Vermont co-ed. She died at Revere General Hospital yesterday.

The athlete, Lawrence "Larry" Killick, 25, of Burlington, Vt., a recent University of Vermont graduate, was held for the grand jury on a charge of being an accessory before the fact to illegal surgery.

The technician, Rupert S. Newhall, 30, of Peabody, was bound over to the same session of the grand jury in $5000 on a charge of performing the illegal surgery.

Both men waived examination when they were arraigned before Judge William H. Fay.

Killick, who transferred from Dartmouth College to the Vermont university last year, was arrested by Revere police following the girl's death and turned over to Peabody police.

She had been rushed to the Revere Hospital during the holiday forenoon in a private ambulance from a Salem hotel, but died before police could talk with her. Hospital authorities brought the circumstances of the girl's death to the attention of police and Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg.

The basketball star, according to Sgt. James Gray of the Revere police, said he met the brunette co-ed at the Vermont college last November, and that he and the girl wanted to marry but her parents objected.

Chief Murphy said the operation was allegedly performed in the Peabody home of Newhall on June 28. After the operation the girl was taken to a Salem hotel, where she remained until three days ago, when she was taken to the tourist cabin. When her condition became serious she was rushed to the hospital, police stated.

Ex-King Carol Weds His Fatally Ill Magda

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 5 (INS)—The Rio De Janeiro newspaper O Globo reported today that Mme. Magda Lupescu was married last night to former King Carol of Romania, the ceremony performed as the famous red-haired one-time Bucharest beauty entered into the closing stages of a fatal illness.

O Globo said the marriage was performed in Carol's suite at a Rio de Janeiro hotel, witnessed by Prince Kzartski, Romanian Minister Urdarianus and six prominent Brazilians.

Rumors that Mme. Lupescu is desperately ill have appeared in the Brazilian press for many months, and O Globo said Mme. Lupescu is dying.

In the past, however, she appeared in public with the exiled ex-king after being reported on her death-bed.

Carol, succeeded as king of Romania by his son, Michael, during the war, came to Rio de Janeiro as an exile after long residence with Mme. Lupescu in Mexico City.

The couple failed to obtain entry permits to the United States and finally chose the colorful Copacabana Hotel on Rio de Janeiro's waterfront as their home.

Apparently well-equipped with funds, Carol set up a luxurious establishment and was seen frequently in night-clubs, restaurants and cabarets with his aging companion, for whom he once renounced his throne and then recouped it by unseating his own son who had succeeded on his first abdication.

In recent weeks, amid reports of Mme. Lupescu's grave illness, efforts to obtain even telephonic contact with the royal suite were unavailing.

On her last public appearance, Mme. Lupescue was reported as appearing ill and worn, her face heavily lined and her renowned auburn hair streaked with gray.

Carol is the son of the late Queen Marie of Romania, whose colorful visits to the United States in pre-war years have become part of history.

New Employment High Seen in Fall

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—September may bring a new all-time employment record, Robert C. Goodwin, director of the U. S. Employment Service, said the figure will reach 59,300,000 if seasonal employment follows its usual trend.

Jobs totaled 58,300,000 last May, a new record, and Goodwin expected additional 1,000,000 seasonal workers, mostly students and housewives. Rising employment was attributed to high levels of manufacturing, consumer demand and exports.

Lowell Pastor's Son Slain

MIAMI, July 5 (AP)—The body of a taxicab driver with two bullet wounds in the head and another under the right arm was found in the front seat of a cab here shortly after 5 a. m. today. He was identified as Chris T. Theodorou, 25, war veteran and son of Rev. Theo L. Theodorou, a Lowell, Mass., clergyman.

Patrolmen John Poythress and Warren Watson discovered the body while touring the Coconut Grove area where residents said they had heard a noise like firecrackers about 10 o'clock last night.

Det. Thomas Lipe of the Homide Bureau said the motive for the killing may have been robbery. The taxi driver's wallet was empty.

James J. Marshall, an attorney, told police he was on his front porch during a rainstorm when he heard three shots in rapid succession and then a fourth.

Police said that on May 9, Theodorou had applied for appointment as a Miami patrolman.

Pastor's Slain Son Ploesti Air Raid Hero

LOWELL, July 5—Chris T. Theodorou, slain in Miami, was the son of the Rev. Theo and Mrs. Aspasia Theodorou, of School st. His father, who formerly served in Nashua, N. H., is a priest in St. George' Greek Orthodox Church.

The youth served for six years in the Army Air Force and took part in the first famous raid on Romania's Ploesti oil fields and later on in the bombing of Monte Cassino in Italy.

Auto Jumps Over Curbing, Kills Infant

Six-week-old Mary Ann Jamieson of Center st., Roxbury, was killed today by an automobile which, out of the driver's control, skidded up over the curbing and demolished the baby's carriage while her mother, Mrs. Agnes Jamieson, looked on with horror.

The child was lying in the carriage in front of their home, while Mrs. Jamieson stood at the first floor porch talking with Mrs. Joseph Orlando, Columbus ave., Roxbury.

Mrs. Orlando's son, Peter, 22 months, was in a carriage only a few feet from that of the Jamieson baby. She saved his life by seizing the carriage and drawing it away as the death car headed for the curbing.

At the wheel of the automobile, struggling vainly to control it, was William J. Munzing, 27, of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury.

He told police that as he was nearing the scene an automobile driven by a woman came out of Highland st. in such a manner he had to twist his steering wheel over hard to avoid a collision, then could not straighten out in time to avoid hitting the carriage.

Mrs. Jamieson, mother of another girl, Mildren Ann, 4, had been making their home with a sister-in-law, Mrs. Richard Brinzi.

The technician, Rupert S. Newhall, 30, of Peabody, was bound over to the same session of the grand jury in $5000 on a charge of performing the illegal surgery.

Both men waived examination when they were arraigned before Judge William H. Fay.

Killick, who transferred from Dartmouth College to the Vermont university last year, was arrested by Revere police following the girl's death and turned over to Peabody police.

She had been rushed to the Revere Hospital during the holiday forenoon in a private ambulance from a Salem hotel, but died before police could talk with her. Hospital authorities brought the circumstances of the girl's death to the attention of police and Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg.

The basketball star, according to Sgt. James Gray of the Revere police, said he met the brunette co-ed at the Vermont college last November, and that he and the girl wanted to marry but her parents objected.

Chief Murphy said the operation was allegedly performed in the Peabody home of Newhall on June 28. After the operation the girl was taken to a Salem hotel, where she remained until three days ago, when she was taken to the tourist cabin. When her condition became serious she was rushed to the hospital, police stated.

Ex-King Carol Weds His Fatally Ill Magda

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 5 (INS)—The Rio De Janeiro newspaper O Globo reported today that Mme. Magda Lupescu was married last night to former King Carol of Romania, the ceremony performed as the famous red-haired one-time Bucharest beauty entered into the closing stages of a fatal illness.

O Globo said the marriage was performed in Carol's suite at a Rio de Janeiro hotel, witnessed by Prince Kzartski, Romanian Minister Urdarianus and six prominent Brazilians.

Rumors that Mme. Lupescu is desperately ill have appeared in the Brazilian press for many months, and O Globo said Mme. Lupescu is dying.

In the past, however, she appeared in public with the exiled ex-king after being reported on her death-bed.

Carol, succeeded as king of Romania by his son, Michael, during the war, came to Rio de Janeiro as an exile after long residence with Mme. Lupescu in Mexico City.

The couple failed to obtain entry permits to the United States and finally chose the colorful Copacabana Hotel on Rio de Janeiro's waterfront as their home.

Apparently well-equipped with funds, Carol set up a luxurious establishment and was seen frequently in night-clubs, restaurants and cabarets with his aging companion, for whom he once renounced his throne and then recouped it by unseating his own son who had succeeded on his first abdication.

In recent weeks, amid reports of Mme. Lupescu's grave illness, efforts to obtain even telephonic contact with the royal suite were unavailing.

On her last public appearance, Mme. Lupescue was reported as appearing ill and worn, her face heavily lined and her renowned auburn hair streaked with gray.

Carol is the son of the late Queen Marie of Romania, whose colorful visits to the United States in pre-war years have become part of history.

New Employment High Seen in Fall

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—September may bring a new all-time employment record, Robert C. Goodwin, director of the U. S. Employment Service, said the figure will reach 59,300,000 if seasonal employment follows its usual trend.

Jobs totaled 58,300,000 last May, a new record, and Goodwin expected additional 1,000,000 seasonal workers, mostly students and housewives. Rising employment was attributed to high levels of manufacturing, consumer demand and exports.

Lowell Pastor's Son Slain

MIAMI, July 5 (AP)—The body of a taxicab driver with two bullet wounds in the head and another under the right arm was found in the front seat of a cab here shortly after 5 a. m. today. He was identified as Chris T. Theodorou, 25, war veteran and son of Rev. Theo L. Theodorou, a Lowell, Mass., clergyman.

Patrolmen John Poythress and Warren Watson discovered the body while touring the Coconut Grove area where residents said they had heard a noise like firecrackers about 10 o'clock last night.

Det. Thomas Lipe of the Homide Bureau said the motive for the killing may have been robbery. The taxi driver's wallet was empty.

James J. Marshall, an attorney, told police he was on his front porch during a rainstorm when he heard three shots in rapid succession and then a fourth.

Police said that on May 9, Theodorou had applied for appointment as a Miami patrolman.

Pastor's Slain Son Ploesti Air Raid Hero

LOWELL, July 5—Chris T. Theodorou, slain in Miami, was the son of the Rev. Theo and Mrs. Aspasia Theodorou, of School st. His father, who formerly served in Nashua, N. H., is a priest in St. George' Greek Orthodox Church.

The youth served for six years in the Army Air Force and took part in the first famous raid on Romania's Ploesti oil fields and later on in the bombing of Monte Cassino in Italy.

Auto Jumps Over Curbing, Kills Infant

Six-week-old Mary Ann Jamieson of Center st., Roxbury, was killed today by an automobile which, out of the driver's control, skidded up over the curbing and demolished the baby's carriage while her mother, Mrs. Agnes Jamieson, looked on with horror.

The child was lying in the carriage in front of their home, while Mrs. Jamieson stood at the first floor porch talking with Mrs. Joseph Orlando, Columbus ave., Roxbury.

Mrs. Orlando's son, Peter, 22 months, was in a carriage only a few feet from that of the Jamieson baby. She saved his life by seizing the carriage and drawing it away as the death car headed for the curbing.

At the wheel of the automobile, struggling vainly to control it, was William J. Munzing, 27, of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury.

He told police that as he was nearing the scene an automobile driven by a woman came out of Highland st. in such a manner he had to twist his steering wheel over hard to avoid a collision, then could not straighten out in time to avoid hitting the carriage.

Mrs. Jamieson, mother of another girl, Mildren Ann, 4, had been making their home with a sister-in-law, Mrs. Richard Brinzi.

British Join French in Plea Reds Back Aid-Europe Plan

By International News Service

Britain joined France today in a final effort to persuade Russia to co-operate with the 22-nation economic conference on European recovery, scheduled to open in Paris on July 12. A spokesman for the foreign office said Britain has handed to Soviet Ambassador Zarubin a copy of the Anglo-French invitation to European countries.

With it went a note expressing the hope that Russia's initial refusal to cooperate with Anglo-French proposals for implementing the Marshall plan is not conclusive.

Italy and Eire were the first nations formally to accept the invitation. Seven others were listed in London as having unofficially accepted. They are Portugal, Belgium, Holland, Greece, Sweden, Turkey and Denmark.

Formal acceptances are expected to arrive in London today.

A Czechoslovak foreign office spokesman admitted an official government delegation en route to Moscow will discuss the conference with the Kremlin.

He insisted, however, that the Czech government itself will make the final decision.

In Bucharest, the government controlled newspaper Universal indicated Romania will reject the invitation to the conference.

In Budapest the Communist newspaper Szabad said Hungary will also reject the Anglo-French invitation.

Szabad charged that the Marshall plan is directed against the Soviet Union.

The Scandinavian countries will send their foreign ministers to Oslo or Copenhagen next week to decide on participation.

Opines U. S. Girls Don't Live Up to Their Looks

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—There's a tall man in town from Paris who says American women are a great example of packaging—but who doubts if the contents measure up to the wrappings. The tall man is Relman (Pat) Morin, a reporter who has rambled across half a hundred lands in the last 10 years covering the big news stories of war and peace. He said:

"In America packaging is a great art, but the packages are often better than the contents. That applies to American women. No other women in the world can match them from the standpoint of figure, coloring, complexion and quality of attire."

What's that about the contents, Mr. Morin? Then came the needle:

"They have neither the modesty, nor the charm, nor the gentleness of European women—in short, fewer of the inner qualities that make for an attractive woman."

That opens up again the biggest argument the U. S. troops brought back from the war: Are American women as feminine as those in lands overseas?

Mr. Morin says with a regretful sigh that—no, they are not. He said he thought the care with which American women develop their plumage instead of their personalities reflected a basic difference between this country and the rest of the world.

"In America we oversell everything," he smiled. "We try to appear to be more than perhaps we really are. That, I think, is the reason Europeans say American women have the loudest and screechiest voices in the world."

Well, there you are, ladies—in one man's opinion. But don't write in to complain in a buzzsaw soprano or else he'll be sure he's right. You'll have to change his mind through kindness.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

FOR THREE CENTURIES, work was the creed of Americans. The early settlers had to work or starve. The founders of this nation had to work, or there could have been no nation. The honored men were not aristocrats, not those who traced their lineage back to William the Conqueror. Honor went to those who achieved success in any field by hard work.

And out of all this work, the people of this country piled up huge wealth. They created an industrial structure which stands unparalleled in history. They established means of communication, railroads, highways, telegraph, telephone, and more recently, the airplane and radio in the greatest profusion. They could afford the luxuries of churches, schools, hospitals and numerous social institutions and associations.

Every small town, as well as the large cities, had newspapers and other vehicles of information and free expression of opinion.

All this was the result of work in a free society where each man followed his judgment and gave a maximum of effort. Those billions that politicians speak of so freely and scatter to the winds is the hoard of generations of Americans, accumulating and increasing from the time of the early colonies until these days of profligacy.

IT IS THIS HOARD that is now being dissipated. Much of it is being spent in futile politics, to putty the holes of a declining society in Europe and Asia. As dangerous as such a course is, even more dangerous, more frightening is the damage done by imitation of European ways by those who, having the benefits of this free and rich country, seek utopias in a decaying society.

What is the Utopia that Europe offers? At best it is a workless society. For the mark of a gentleman in any aristocratic community was that he did not work. He might govern other men. He might control their minds and even their persons. He might devote himself to a fashion or to dilettantism in one of the arts or humanities, but he did not soil himself by productivity. He did not add to the wealth of his nation or any other. He was an ornament.

That, to many, is Utopia. It is the ideal to which men, in this generation, look. That, for instance, is what happened in England. For decades the British Socialists have been offering their followers a society with less work, fewer hours, more leisure.

When the Socialist government took over, the British workingman assumed that Utopia had arrived and that he could work less and be guaranteed from the cradle to the grave. France went through that period on the verge of World War II and was, because of it, smashed by the Nazi.

"The waiter is gonna be awfully disappointed with that tip, Dad. It's the same amount as my allowance!"

HERE IN THIS COUNTRY all sorts of devices are offered to lessen productivity until today we are suffering a scarcity which is the result of decreased work. Every industry suffers from limitations upon the efficiency of the worker who restricts his output to conform to rules set to equalize the more competent with the least competent. Ceilings have been placed upon human progress by rejecting new devices which increase output and which forbid exhibitions of superior abilities by those who possess them.

The danger is that while we are consuming our savings in wars, relief and aids, we are not building new hoards of wealth by increased output. As our savings decrease—and the national debt is the best example of the decrease—prices rise, wages grow meaningless because of higher prices, and the tax rate becomes an unbearable impediment to new developments and greater output.

IN A WORD, we are being squeezed between losses in our national capital hoard and the greater difficulty in individual efforts to produce more and to keep the rewards of production.

That is what the Utopians have brought us. For while those who would put Heaven on earth immediately paint roseate pictures of what the outcome of their changes will be, actually they make us all poorer as individuals and they are impoverishing our collective hoard

Ruby Foo's Son Released On Heavy Bail in Shooting

Earl M. Shong, 24, son of Ruby Foo, widely known restaurant proprietress, was released in $10,000 bail in West Roxbury court today after pleading not guilty to assault with intent to murder his stepfather, William Wong, 32, in the swank Foo-Wong Jamaica way home.

Earl M. Shong

Wong, 3d husband of Ruby Foo, is at the Bay State Hospital, Commonwealth ave., as the result of two bullets allegedly fired by his stepson after the latter claimed he found him threatening Ruby Foo in a domestic quarrel.

The case was continued to July 14.

"This young man has no record," Callahan told the court, "except that he was up a year or two years ago on a lottery charge. Moreover, I am told Mr. Wong is out of danger and even wanted to come to court this morning."

Judge MacDonnell nevertheless said he would want bail of $20,000 with surety.

Callahan asked if the court would agree to lower bail in cash. Judge MacDonnell agreed to $10,000. A professional bondsman, Maurice Victor, arranged for the bail after several Chinese passed their bankbooks over to him.

Also present were Doris Shong, a sister of the defendant; his wife, Helen Shong, and a family friend, Lt. Tony Lin of the Chinese Army, who was in his native uniform. Lin, listed on the complaint with the others as a witness, is a student at the U. S. Army school, Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

Although Ruby Foo was listed on the complaint as a witness, she did not appear in court.

Police had a statement allegedly made to them by Shong in the presence of a police stenographer. Therein he was recorded as saying he was playing cards on the first floor of the home with friends, one Lt. Lin, when he heard his mother crying for help.

He left the game and ran upstairs, according to the statement, and finally came upon his mother in the 32-year-old Wong's bedroom.

Young Shong declared Ruby Foo was in the room and Wong was making threatening gestures at her.

Shong said he then ran from the room and seized the German war souvenir, an automatic brought back from World War II by one of Ruby Foo's employes. Returning, according to the statement, Shong let two shots go at his stepfather, but one flew wild.

Lt. Monahan said that when he arrived at the Ruby Foo mansion about 2:30 a. m., he found Wong being attended by Dr. Julius Siegel of Belgrade ave., West Roxbury. A police ambulance was called and Wong was removed to the hospital.

While his name was placed on the danger list, he remained conscious and was able to talk, and later viewed his stepson at the bedside and identified him, the detective said, as the assailant.

Saves Wife Convicted Of Theft From Prison

Sentenced to the Women's Reformatory for larceny of $780 from a New York man during a downtown hotel room rendezvous, Mrs. Sylvia Cummings, 35, of Exeter st., Arlington, was saved from a jail cell today by her loyal husband.

The attractive Arlington matron had appealed an indefinite term imposed by Judge Elijah Adlow in municipal court. But she was about to be led away to jail in lieu of $1000 bail when her husband, Charles M. Cummings put up her bonds. They left the courtroom together.

Mrs. Cummings

Mrs. Cummings was found guilty Thursday of the theft of a wallet containing $780. Julius Heineman, 50, New York city jewelry salesman, accused her of stealing the billfold from his room in a downtown hotel after they struck up a chance acquaintance at a bar and made a nightclub tour.

Judge Adlow had warned Mrs. Cummings he would impose a jail sentence unless she made restitution.

"Have you made restitution?" the judge asked her today.

"No, I am not guilty," Mrs. Cummings answered.

Sentence was then imposed.

Q—What is the best material for dusting corn?

A—At present there are several commercial corn borer dusts on the market. Suggest trying Fixed Nicotine dust of 1 per cent rotenone dust, as both of these materials have proved effective.

Q—Most of my crops grew well above the ground, but I cannot grow good beets or carrots. What can be the trouble?

A—This may be caused by one of several factors. Too much nitrogen, and a lack of potash may cause this trouble, or the soil may have been overlimed which causes potash to be unavailable. Suggest using more organic material and complete fertilizers.

Betty Hutton Grand in Met's 'Perils of Pauline' Lead

By PEGGY DOYLE

Paramount's 93-minute retake of the brief and violent screen life of the most harassed heroine in movie history, serial-queen Pearl White, appropriately enough initiated the late ear-splitting holiday weekend at the Met Theater.

With Betty Hutton, herself as vividly explosive as a brace of Roman candles, impersonating the fabulous near-victim of those black-and-white serial thrillers of the silent days, nostalgia and belly-laughs find a hilarious meeting-ground.

"The Perils of Pauline," in its 1947 version . . . Miss White reigned from 1913 to 1924 . . . has all the modern improvements, Technicolor, a soundtrack and improved techniques that spare Betty most of the yoks involved in Pearl's imperiled cinematic career.

Miss Hutton's choice as the wired-for-sound Pauline was inspired casting. She plays the daring darling of the silents for all she is worth, contrives to be believable and incredibly intrepid at the same time.

Assisting her are a flock of old-time film comics including Chester Conklin, Snub Pollard and Bert Roach and such latter-day favorites as John Lund and that veteran, Constance Collier.

The something new added to "Perils" is a local product, Wollaston's Billy De Wolfe, whose zing into the comedy as roundly diction-conscious Timmy puts the as he puts the O in O-range.

Cotton Goes Smart in Play Togs

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

COTTON WILL GO WHERE you go this summer . . . to the beach, to the country, to the mountains, to the office . . . and do what you do . . . work or play. It wants to and it can . . . for designers have endowed it with long-deserved artistry . . . even in play garb. Of all the fabrics identified with summer smartness and comfort . . . none is more versatile than cotton, so charmingly acquiescent to simplicity or high style. And this season it is both richly manipulated and artistically fashioned both for play wear and sporting play.

For knock-about chic at beach resorts or for country-club chumminess . . . it reigns supreme. With or without bare midriff . . . cotton cuts a high fashion caper for summer . . . a virtual guarantee of freedom of motion and fashionability. Lovable and tubable . . . cotton is as American as ham and eggs . . . and the indispensable warm-weather garb of American womanhood.

If you are young and gay you'll expose a bare midriff between your low-cut-necklined bodice and dirndl skirt. For the more decorous . . . the all-in-one cotton with its full-skirted flare and young-girl touches at the neck and sleeves is easy to wear and good to look at.

Play cottons are especially appealing . . . made from festive designs and in color combines subtle and contrasting. Tabak of California . . . famous for his sportswear . . . makes play cottons that have an air, with a flare.

FROSTY WHITE POPULAR

Lounge in them, play in them, dress up smartly in them . . . you can do any and all these fashion stints with frill-less but fastidious cottons. And if you are a slack-suit lover . . . as so many women are . . . make it frosty white, so good this season for play, for day and for night.

White touches or an all-white outfit slices years from your looks . . . adds youth to your appearance. Wear white accessories for town wear . . . or white sandals for play.

Make your playsuit white or bounding with white decor . . . such as the stripe in the fabric . . . the ruching at the neckline . . . or the eyelet embroidery used for inset ruffles at the armholes.

Youth is the underlying keynote of all summer clothes . . . and if you don't get your share, something is wrong in your selection!

SUN SONATA. All lined up for a wonderful future in a saucy little midriff and calf-length patio are these interchangeables. Styled by Tabak in Hope Skillman's satin-striped cotton . . . they feature a button front dress that can also be worn as a beach coat . . . with matching shorts and bra.

SMART PLAYABLE . . . this crisp white slack suit in which Tabak of California features a 33-inch coat tailored to perfection . . . in which a-free-flaring back dips just a bit into a modified fish tail. The coat front is kept straight and trim with a belt pulled through slots on each side of the garment. There's soiree smartness in this costume.

MALIBU MELODY . . . or Cape Cod cuteness! It isn't what the playables are called but how they look that makes them so eye-charming and summer-satisfying. Reflecting the wholesome look of sun and air . . . the two versions by Tabak of California glorify Dan River striped cotton into a dress and a skirt and midriff. Available in red and white, blue and white, or gray and white . . . they happily accept the framing neckline of white poplin with similar insets on the skirt.

Try This Fruit Omelet

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

IN SUMMERTIME when appetites long for something different, an omelet often satisfies. And the nice thing about an omelet is that it can be varied in so many ways. Basically there are two kinds—plain and fluffy. In making a plain omelet, the whole eggs and liquid are beaten together, while in a fluffy omelet, the yolks are separated from the whites, and the liquid is added to the yolks. Then the whites are beaten stiff and folded into the yolk mixture.

Both omelets require 1 to 2 eggs for each serving, and a tablespoon of liquid to each egg. This liquid may be milk or water, tomato juice or vegetable juice of one kind or another. An omelet made with fruit juice instead of milk or water, and filled with mixed canned fruit, is a delicate and tempting variant. Try it sometime for a Sunday brunch menu. It's amazing how sweet tooths respond with enthusiasm to this omelet, which, of course, may also be made with fresh fruits.

FRUIT OMELET

5 eggs
⅛ tsp. salt
1 cup drained mixed canned fruit, diced
1 tsp. powdered sugar
5 tbsp. juice from canned fruit
3 tbsp. butter or margarine

Beat eggs until foamy. Add fruit juice and salt and mix well. Melt butter in heavy frying pan. Add eggs and cook over medium heat, lifting edges of omelet as it cooks, allowing the uncooked mixture to run under and around the cooked portion. When bottom is browned, arrange fruit over omelet. Fold in half or roll and turn out onto hot platter. Sprinkle with powdered sugar. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

For gala occasions, let's say an after-theater supper, a special touch of glamor may be added. Place the omelet on a platter, pour over it ¼ cup of rum, apply a match, bear the flaming masterpiece proudly to the table, and delight your guests. Then, when the flame dies down, serve portions immediately on pre-heated plates.

FLUFFY OMELET

6 eggs
6 tbsp. milk
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper

Separate the eggs, beat yolks until thick and add milk and seasonings. Beat whites until stiff but not dry and fold into yolk mixture. Melt fat in frying pan, pour in mixture, and cook over low heat until omelet puffs and is browned on the bottom. Will take 7 or 8 minutes. Finish cooking in 325 deg. F. oven about 20 minutes or until omelet springs back to original shape when touched with finger. Fold over and serve on warm platter. Makes 4 servings.

Ham Omelet: Sprinkle 1 or 2 tbsp. (for each serving) minced cooked ham over the omelet while it is cooking.

Cheese Omelet: Add 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ cup grated cheese and 2 tablespoons chopped parsley to egg yolk-milk mixture; or omit parsley and sprinkle grated cheese over omelet while it is cooking.

Cottage Cheese Omelet: Add from ½ to 1 cup cottage cheese and 2 tbsp. finely chopped pimento to egg yolk-milk mixture.

Infant Killed By Car

Assisted by neighbors, Mrs. Agnes Jamieson, Center st., Roxbury (center), leaves the City Hospital today near collapse after she learned that her infant daughter, Mary Ann, died of injuries when an automobile, out of control, leaped the curbing and crushed the six-weeks-old girl in her carriage (at right). The child's mother, standing on the porch of her home, witnessed the tragedy, unable to aid. (Story on Page 3.)

JOHN PAUL JONES

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE are making a special commemorative occasion of the birthday of John Paul Jones tomorrow, the bicentennial anniversary of the man who earned a distinguished and respected place in the history of the country as the father of the American Navy.

America is rich in many things, but richest of all in its wealth of treasured names.

At every critical point in American history, when the counsel and example and leadership of men who understood the destiny of America and had the courage to pursue it were needed, such men have appeared to command and inspire the American people.

Their names are treasured, for they were men of faith when it was the strength and the spirit and the vision of faith which America depended upon for its own survival.

They gave meaning to our national aspirations, and purpose to our national principles and ideals, and reality to our national standards of justice and brotherhood and tolerance, and made all these wholesome things fruitful and productive of the way of life which is our heritage.

Such a man was John Paul Jones, and his name is properly and deservedly treasured among the host of American immortals.

THE NAME of John Paul Jones has been familiar to all Americans familiar with the American story since the beginning of our national history.

It will remain familiar to the American people as long as the drama and the glory of American achievement command understanding and incite appreciation.

To honor it now, after two hundred years, is not merely to meet an obligation as a patriotic duty but to exercise a privilege stemming from the beneficial and productive way of life we have been permitted to lead.

America is a free country, because such men as John Paul Jones conceived of freedom as a proper and good condition of a nation's life and a people's happiness.

America has reverence and affection, and the highest degree of appreciation and gratitude, for its immortal and treasured leaders —for they were first the dreamers who envisioned freedom, and then were the architects of its enduring institutions.

Patriotic commemoration of the birthday of John Paul Jones, and of the significant anniversaries suggested by the lives and deeds of all American immortals, is an appropriate vehicle for the perpetuation of the philosophy and faith and spiritual integrity by which these great men lived and with which they now endow us.

The American people are true to their history and their destiny, true to their fathers and themselves, true to their country and to the hopes of all civilized men, in giving John Paul Jones a place of honor in their memories and in holding his name in perpetual honor.

THE GLORIOUS anniversary is observed with particular joy and fervor in Boston, which was an early and major beneficiary of John Paul Jones' achievements.

Thousands will visit the Navy Yards at Charlestown and South Boston.

Hundreds will board the frigate USS Constitution.

All who can will see the inspiring exhibitions at the Museum of Fine Arts and many other historical institutions.

In churches and on the radio the greatness of this dauntless leader will be proclaimed.

The day will truly belong to all who believe in the American tradition which John Paul Jones fought to establish and who respect and regard the Navy for its accomplishments and the security which it provides for our people.

A woman's love is like a spring,
Which, if the we in fetters bind,
To the first sunbeam's kiss will fling
Its waters pure and unconfined.
A woman's love is like a star,
Which, if a thousand times it shine
In vain, still watches from afar,
Till the beloved shall seek its shrine.

AS FOR TALL FELLOWS with short wives the greatest discrepancy in heighth I have seen between a married pair was that of Robert E. Sherwood, playwright, and his first wife. Bob is six feet six inches tall. His first wife was about four feet four inches tall. Now I have just been reading of a wedding that took place in Cooksborough, Ireland. The husband, Robert Judge, was 93, and his bride, Anne Nugent, 17. Mr. Judge was six feet six inches in height and his bride three feet, two inches.

PASSING BY—Maria Elizabeth Seiber, Daughter of Marlene Dietrich. Maria has just been married for a second time. Maybe Marlene will soon be a grandmother. Can you name a Hollywoodian who has been a top flight film star and a grandmother at the same time? I mean a star who is not a character actress but still plays glamour woman parts? . . . Ford Christopher Frick. Once a newspaperman. Now president of the National Baseball League. Played some baseball himself in his youth. He is vice-president of the association of ex-first basemen. Jim Farley is president of this organization.

ASKING — Queries from clients. Q—Who wrote the song "Everybody's Doin' It" and when? A—Irving Berlin perpetrated that ditty around 1912. It referred to the popular dance of the time known as the turkey trot. If you are not familiar with the turkey trot ask your grandma and grandpa to dance it for you. Q—Can your mules and men department advise me how I can cure my husband of giving me a peck kiss when he arrives home in the evening? This kiss is so cold and formal it makes me shiver. A—When your spouse arrives at the hacienda throw your arms around him and give him a long, long kiss with plenty of feeling in it If he doesn't respond to this with enthusiasm then the honeymoon is definitely over and the situation you describe will have to be accepted with resignation. Or so say our mules and men experts. Q—Who was the leading lady of the original stage productions of 1—"Bought and Paid For" 2—"Within the Law" A—1. Julia Dean. 2. Jane Cowl.

TOD'S SISTER—That Tod Sloan, the jockey, had a brother named Cash I knew. But that he had a sister named Blanche, who was a trapeze artist in vaudeville, is news to me. A subscriber who lived in London around the turn of the century says he saw Blanche do her trapeze act in London music halls a number of times.

ASIDES—It is said the greatest "SCENE STEALERS" in Hollywood history are Wallace Berry and Lana Turner, when she wore a sweater . . . Now the French are making whisky. They have a formula all their own. They hope to compete with Scotch, Irish and bourbon whisky.

SAYS SHE: "That Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) women are the 'it' and 'oomph' girls of the Zodiac there is no doubt. They have what it takes to make a man turn around for a second look," writes a San Franciscan. "But Scorpio women are not very flirtatious. On the other hand Libra (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) women who are more often than not lacking in 'oomph' and 'it' are very flirtatious. This is unfortunate. That's why there is so much frustration among Libra women. It is also the reason why women born under that sign are so critical of Scorpio women. The male appeal of the Scorpios drives the Libra women wild with envy. Have your Horses & Women experts (stargazers division) check on this. The results will undoubtedly be both interesting and amusing."

SIDELIGHTS—As for the name of the left-handed shortstop who played for the Philadelphia Nationals in the nineties. It was Billy Hulen . . . Add members M. N. I. A. P. club: Kay Shea, Los Angeles . . . Am asked what breed of dog has the best average longevity record. The query baffles me. It might be one of the following breeds: wire-haired terrier, pekinese or chihuahua. I have known dogs of each of these breeds to live to be over 23 years of age.

"Just a little longer, folks, and you can have it . . . !"

PAUL GALLICO

Distributed by McNaught Synd., Inc.

FORT TICONDEROGA, N. Y., July 5—This department will from time to time conduct historical researches in the interest of its clients to round out their knowledge of important incidents in American history.

This dispatch, for instance, is being prepared on the hallowed ground of the great Fort on the shores of Lake Champlain, a valuable piece of real estate which, in 1775, Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain Boys removed from the custody of the British, catching the commander of the strong point with his pants down.

Paul Gallico

You may feel that the above metaphor is a flippant vulgarism used to describe General Allen's noble deed of arms by which the Patriots gained control of the important waterway leading to Canada.

It happens, however, to be the literal truth. So complete, history tells us, was the surprise move of General Allen and his 83 stout Green Mountaineers that Captain Delaplace, the British commander in charge of George the Third's property at this heavenly spot on the lake, was trapped with his pantalones abasso.

Since no British officer and gentleman could be expected to conduct an important military operation with his breeks at half mast, transfer of title to the fort and all its contents was completed then and there.

History, however, is deficient in reporting the dialogue that accompanied this notable coup. Here on the spot, on the parade grounds inside the barracks of the old fort, opposite the spot where it happened in the early dawn of May 10, 1775, it is not difficult for the imagination to supply some of the missing lines.

AS A FURTHER stimulant, there hangs in the museum on the premises here, a famous painting of the historic event. It depicts General Allen with his sword drawn and his left arm upraised, accompanied by a caddy bearing a lantern, confronting Captain Delaplace at the entrance to the Captain's quarters.

Behind the Captain may be seen the figure of Mrs. Delaplace, who has toddled along behind poppa to see what all the rumpus is about.

The General had rowed his small force across Lake Champlain during the night, invested the Fort, drawn his men up in two ranks on the parade grounds where they gave three lusty huzzahs, all without arousing or even disturbing the sleep of the snoring British garrison, a tribute to the healthful and sleep-inducing air of this lovely neighborhood.

He then repaired up a stone step leading to the barrack where the commander lived and ordered him to come forth, and, according to General Allen's own account, "...at which the capt. came immediately to the door with his breeches in his hand, when I ordered him to deliver me the fort instantly, who asked me by what authority I demanded it; I answered, 'In the name of the great Jehovah and the Continental Congress'."

MRS. DELAPLACE: (from the rear) What's the man saying? Is he selling something? I say, darling, do pull up your buskins. You look most ridiculous standing out there in your . . .

CAPTAIN DELAPLACE: Dash it all, dear, I'm trying to, but the blighter keeps waving his sword at me. (to General Allen) Look here, old chap, this is most irregular, you know, a bit undignified and all that; can't we . . .

GENERAL ALLEN: (who was not noted for his sense of humor) In the cause of liberty against tyranny, I demand you surrender or I will sacrifice the whole garrison.

MRS. DELAPLACE: I declare, I don't know what's come over you, Captain Delaplace, standing there in that attire arguing with a stranger catching your death of cold. You come right back in here and pull up your . . .

CAPTAIN DELAPLACE: Be quiet, darling. What about getting some clothes on yourself? Oh, blast, what a way to fight a war. (to General Allen) I say, old fellow, what about going out and coming in again? It just isn't done, you know, expecting an officer of his Majesty's 26th to fight without his . . . What did you say your name was?

GENERAL ALLEN: Allen, and I don't mean Fred. Surrender, or—ooops, look out, sir . . .

MRS. DELAPLACE: William Delaplace, you come right back in here this minute and put on your . . .

CAPTAIN DELAPLACE: Oh, dash it all, Allen, take the ruddy Fort, but lend me a hand with these braces.

HOLLYWOOD, July 5—The threatened court battle between Hedy Lamarr and John Loder has settled down into an uncontested divorce case.

Hedy Lamarr

John was served with papers Thursday after signing an agreement earlier in the day with his lawyer, Greg Bautzer, and Hedy's attorney, Ronald Button.

According to the agreement, the old papers were destroyed.

John now agrees to pay $300 a month for the support of the three children—Denise, 2; Tony, three months, and James, 8-year-old adopted boy. According to the arrangement, he has permission to see the children twice a week.

After Denise and Tony have reached three years of age, John may have them and James spend a month with him during the summer and may have them at his home.

There was no community property agreed upon because John waived all claim to it when he married the glamorous Hedy.

Too bad they couldn't have settled their difficulty, especially with two young babies, but I'm sure all of their friends feel that if they must part, it is better to do so amicably than have a bitterly contested court trial, as was indicated when they first separated.

JANE WYMAN was not supposed to start "Johnny Belinda" until September, but she is so depressed over losing her baby, born three months prematurely, that she wants to get back to work as soon as possible.

She left the Queen of the Angels Hospital Wednesday and, in a few weeks, Janie reports to Warners and Jerry Wald for this picture.

"It has already been announced that Rory Calhoun will be the hero, on loan out from David Selznick. Of course, whoever gets Rory these days gets a hot one—for the teen-agers are plumb crazy for him.

JUST IMAGINE: Vivian Blaine left here six o'clock Friday morning, lands in London today at five a. m. and opens at the London Casino Monday night. That's speed for you.

She'll be gone about seven weeks and will visit her aunt, who is Mother Superior in a convent in Italy, and will stop over at the Riviera and tour Brussels, Paris and Switzerland, getting home the last of August.

20th gave her permission to do this show at the Casino, feeling it would help them as well as her.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: The Van Johnsons gave their first party yesterday in their new home, and it wasn't really a movie party, although there were many movie people present.

It was a tennis tournament with Alice Marble, the former tennis champ, Eleanor Tennent, Frank Parker and Walter Pidgeon all playing in the doubles. Van has become a very fine tennis player and he spends all his leisure moments practicing.

I have never known him to be as happy as he is now, and he is especially delighted over the coming arrival. I want to be the first to say that he'll make a wonderful father.

BONITA GRANVILLE is playing mama to the cutest little boy, five, and a beautiful little girl, three. The little girl calls her Bunny, and says, "I look just like Bunny—I'm blonde, too." They are Jack Wrather's children.

"You know," Bonita told me, "I'm so crazy about the children that I'm not even talking about pictures. Jack just bought 'The Quest of Willie Hunt,' by Leon Ware, for Don Castle. It was a Good Housekeeping Magazine story, but I'm not going to be in it—I'm going to look after the children. It's certainly a delightful experience being a stepmother."

EVERY DAY BRINGS a new Hollywood name headed back to Broadway and a stage show this fall.

The latest is Kent Smith, who leaves here in September to start rehearsals with Katharine Cornell in "Anthony and Cleopatra." Yep, that's right, not "Caesar" and Cleo. Kent has asked for a leave of absence from both Warners and RKO to do this show.

This will be his fourth appearance with Cornell. In fact, it was his appearance in three other shows with her that first brought him to the attention of Hollywood.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Mrs. Jock Lawrence, the former Mary Peace, one-time society writer, underwent an emergency operation yesterday at Good Samaritan Hospital. Friends of Mary and Jock will be glad to know she came through the operation nicely. Jock is here with the J. Arthur Rank delegation as publicity director.

Marsha Mae Jones, prominent former child actress, welcomed a baby boy yesterday. In private life she is Mrs. Robert Chic.

Joan Fontaine and Bill Dozier are at Pebble Beach. The Al Halls, who sell turkeys to most of the stars, took a party to their ranch. The North Shore Tavern at Arrowhead opened and a number of Hollywood friends went there.

Sue Block, the lovely 19-year-old daughter of Lawrence Block, the real estate man, has just announced her engagement to Sheryl Grayke, musical announcer at the Columbia studio. Papa Block is delighted with his daughter's choice. Sheryl's not only a nice boy, but very talented.

Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon having dinner with Cute June Allyson, Dick Powell and Norman Taurog. Bebe is getting ready a story that is a little on the order of "Boys Town," and she and Norman Taurog have had a lot of conferences.

Bette Davis

Adolphe Menjou brought Senator Kane of Washington over to our table. He told me he's here for some steel investigation.

Bill Goetz and Leo Spitz are giving a supper party for J. Arthur Rank after the premiere of "Black Narcissus" Monday night.

Bette Davis made her first appearance since the birth of her baby to see the Gryphon Players at La Guna. She looks wonderful.

Jack Lukas, Mrs. Mike Curtiz's son, produced "Dream Girl" with Ruth Hussey and Don De Fore. Bess (Mrs. C.) herself, handed out the programs. Janet Paige was an usher. You can imagine—this summer theater was filled to capacity.

That's all today. See you Monday.

Listen to Louella O. Parsons Sunday Night, 9:15 to 9:30 EDT, over ABC.

AS OF MONDAY next, the New England racing "war" that seemed ready to explode on several occasions in the past 12 years but which was averted each time before the actual eruption, will be upon us . . . The opening of Lincoln Downs will precipitate the horse-track "war," and although surface serenity undoubtedly will prevail for part of this season at least, no one associated prominently with any of the major New England race-tracks is fooling himself into believing that all is well with the situation.

THE FUNDAMENTAL trouble is that four tracks are blooming where three previously operated in a semblance of harmony, and to the profit of all three . . . Lincoln Downs has catalogued itself as a "major" racetrack, and as a major oval it is directly in competition with Narragansett, Suffolk Downs and Rockingham Park . . . Although its racing dates carefully have been bestowed by an incredibly generous Rhode Island racing commission so as not to conflict with the 60 days of racing for which 'Gansett has been licensed this year, the fact is that Lincoln Downs and the same Narragansett are the "natural" rivals of the local picture.

WHEN LINCOLN DOWNS and its parent-track, little Pascoag, were granted 115 racing days this Spring, the witches' brew which may unsettle the entire New England racing scene was steeping in the cauldron . . . The reason is simple . . . Heretofore, a delicate balance of power has been maintained in the New England situation . . . Suffolk, Rockingham and 'Gansett each has taken a 60-day season (give or take a day or a week for charity sponsorship) and each track has operated successfully without major competition . . . Pascoag, it is true, ran race meetings in competition with both Rockingham Park and Suffolk . . . Pascoag probably cost the New Hampshire and Massachusetts tracks a few millions off the handles . . . But the managements of both Rockingham and Suffolk have chosen to overlook this competition . . . Lou Smith and the successive managements of Suffolk have realized that 'Gansett was nursing a figurative adder at its breast in Lincoln-Pascoag.

THE GOOD JUDGE DOOLEY et al are no more to be held blameworthy, perhaps, at this juncture than heretofore . . . Not for the creation or promotion of the new Lincoln Downs, that is to say . . . But Lincoln Downs has set out to be a "major" track, and—at the same time—to be the most demanding new racetrack which ever courted the smiles and favor of a governor and his racing commission . . . Lincoln wanted 115 days of racing for 1947 . . . And got them . . . Judge Dooley and his associates at 'Gansett certainly did not aid or abet the new track in getting the longest racing season ever granted a New England racetrack . . . At the same time, neither were Judge Dooley and his associates able to deny the new track any dates.

SHOULD LINCOLN DOWNS survive and prosper, this failure on the part of 'Gansett to bring the toddling race track into line is likely to cost 'Gansett dearly, and Suffolk Downs' predictable move for 1948 is obvious . . . Judge Pappas and Arthur Warner, new bosses of Suffolk, will ask the Massachusetts State Racing Commission for 90 days—not the traditional 60 of racing . . . Furthermore, they probably will get them . . . The racing statutes permits 90 days of horse racing, and the Suffolk management will contend that Greater Boston and other populous Bay State points feed the kitties of the race tracks so copiously that racing in New England would be impossible without this support.

WASHINGTON, July 5—Mr. Joe Costa, president of the National Press Photographers Ass'n and one of the greatest newspaper cameramen that ever sliced a cheesecake, leaned across the table, his eyes agleam with the light of reminiscence, and said:

"Do you remember the time you were down in Morganton, North Carolina, covering the case of Basil A. Ryan—'Pat' Ryan, they called him? He woke up to find himself a triple threat man. In bed with him he had a new bride, an even newer baby, and a hangover!"

"What's all this?" demanded Mr. Bob McMillan. "What do you mean he had a bride, a baby, and a hangover?"

"Just what I said," replied Mr. Costa. "And he couldn't make up his mind which was worse."

I told Mr. Costa, as I have had an occasion to tell many of my old playmates, that I would just as soon he would stifle his recollections, particularly in instances where I was involved. I am getting along in years and could pretend a measure of respectability if my chums didn't have such bloody undying memories.

"THIS PAT RYAN," continued Mr. Costa, "was the grandson of Thomas Fortune Ryan, who once dominated Wall Street. Pat's brother, Johnny who used to work with Dixie here in Philadelphia, is married to Otto Kahn's daughter—or was the last time I heard of him. They tell me he has gone respectable too.

"Anyway Pat Ryan got on the loose in Morganton one night and got himself well plastered on corn likker.

"Some time during the guzzling he acquired the companionship of a local belle named Martha Barkley. She claimed to be a cousin of Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, but Dixie wasn't writing politics then so he decided it was an irrelevant piece of information.

"The next morning Ryan came bobbing back to painful consciousness in a hotel room and found not only Miss Barkley snuggling beside him but a two months' old baby too. He asked the lady if she would be good enough to perform the introductions and she replied, very prettily, that they were Mrs. Basil A. Ryan and son.

"Having an archaic idea that time was required for these things, Ryan protested, whereupon the lady whipped out a marriage certificate, dated as staggered out to investigate and learned he had indeed been lawfully wed by the local Justice of the Peace and that the baby was one Miss Barkley attributed to a local swain who had left town rather hurriedly after the blessed event.

"Friends of the wealthy Ryan family got Pat away to a hospital while they set about trying to have the marriage annulled on the grounds of corn likker. Dixie and I flew down to Morganton and sought out Mrs. Ryan, nee Barkley. We wanted some pictures of her that were not stereotyped poses, so Dixie got up and did a very lousy tap dance. She said she could do better than that—and while she was hopping around I kept shopting.

"Dixie got the idea that the Barkley family might not continue to be so co-operative if they were aware of the kind of stories he was telegraphing back home. They verged, shall we say, on the—er—flippant. So he enjoined us to keep them secret from the Barkleys.

"This was difficult because Martha Barkley had a young brother who trailed us nearly everywhere we went. The youth was a bug on aviation and had fallen in love with our pilot, George Weis.

"As a further precaution, we went to the one negro stand we bought up all copies of our New York paper the minute they arrived.

"We took these papers back to our hotel room and each night we would sit around and giggle over them. This one night Dixie had a piece that really sizzled. I took it upon myself to read it to the mob with appropriate gestures.

"Well, there was a young woman in the hotel who stuck her head in the door while I was reading this piece and whispered something to Bob Cranston who was working our wirephoto machine then.

"Cranston dashed out without making explanations. He had been gone less than a minute when there was a knock on the door and Martha Barkley's brother sidled into the room. He went over and sat down on the bed beside Pilot Weis.

"A few minutes later Cranston returned all excited. He walked right past Martha's brother without seeing him; in fact, he actually stumbled over the youth's outstretched legs. Then in a loud and dramatic voice he hissed:

"'Hide that paper and shut up! Martha's brother is hanging around out there in the hall somewhere. That dame just

Vermonter Fills Gap in Braves' Pitching Corps

W. Lanfranconi

By MIKE GILLOOLY

BROOKLYN, July 5—Tying twin salutes onto the tails of the Phils in a holiday explosion that found their previously muted bats popping off 27 bingles, the Braves looked to first place once again today as Bill Voiselle (2-5) squared off against the Brooklyn Dodgers and pitcher Vic Lombardi (2-6) in the opener of the two-game series here before returning home.

They were just a full game off the pace, and although they missed the alleged psychological advantage of the leadership for the Fourth of July they had plenty to be thankful for after their weird beginning on this Eastern holiday cruise. They even had a rainbow over their shoulders as they quit Philly, after riding through a sudden thunderstorm.

Pitcher Walter Lanfranconi, the Barre, Vt., war veteran who still looks like a schoolboy on a joy-ride, had filled in a bad gap in the pitching staff in turning in his first complete game of the season in his second start. And he had his own fielding to thank for stopping the damaging Phillies.

Didn't Even Need Elliott's Bat

ON THREE OCCASIONS, he broke the backs of the Phils with lightning grabs of their smashes in a nifty exhibition of the correct way to win your own ball games. And although he caught the Phils at a low pitch, he turned in a stint that should guarantee him more steady employment.

Quite possibly, too, the Braves may have fractured the theory that they can win only when Bob Elliott can find the range for a few baseknocks.

Going into the first holiday tilt, the All-Star third baseman had been blanked 11 times in three sudden losses that found the club collapsing while on the roof of the National League. But while Elliott rolled out on his first time at bat, the club came through with a two-run push that started Johnnie Sain on his way to a one-sided victory (10-3), his 10th.

Again in the nightcap, with the portsiders on deck, Elliott was handed a white card in his four appearances at the plate but his donation wasn't needed as the Phils stole a key from their sorriest past in providing the winning margin in the opening round.

But as Duffy Lewis put it, Elliott may be saving a few clouts for the Dodgers.

The Braves had Johnnie Hopp back in centerfield for a defensive boost as well as an offensive lift—as his trio of bingles—two of them involved in rallies that salted away the second game for the Southworth A. C.—will testify. His return is welcomed at this stage of the race, with first place by nightfall a potentiality.

Barrett Southworth's Sabbath Choice

Manager Burt Shotten has little faith in the July 4 superstition so far as his Dodgers are concerned. The Dodgers have been on to pon July 5 in five of the past seven flag chases, yet only once did they hit the baseball jackpot.

Manager Southworth's choice for the Sabbath singleton will be Charles "Red" Barrett, innocent in a non-support case in the Phillies series . . . For the Dodgers, it will probably be Ralph Branca, the Durocher experiment of last season who was sent into a game against the Cards as a decoy but then hung around long enough to insert the Bums back into the pennant race.

Philly fans root strictly for the winner . . . They had the entire club on the roaster during both games, with their lustiest cheers saved for their ex, Frank McCormick . . . Harry Walker, among the big three in the individual batting race, was a particular goat . . . Even the Phillies' Mrs. Nussbaum had no kind words as she waited for each of them to come out of the park to chide them on their failures.

Philly pitchers certainly get plenty of work . . . Dutch Leonard, dropping his first decision in Shibe Park this season after six straight, complained of a sore arm in the Hub last Sunday but he was back on the hill, with little on the ball.

Two slight casualties turned up on the Braves . . . Sibby Sisti tripped chasing a foul ball in the first game, retired in favor of Dick Culler but returned for the nightcap . . . Danny Litwhiler bruised his heel in the fifth inning of the opener, gave way to Bama Rowell . . . Attendance for the abbreviated road trip will pass the 125,000 mark if the weather remains propitious for the two games in Brooklyn.

Kelly Wins Classic at Henley; Britons Boo Dad, Son After Win

HENLEY-ON-THE-THAMES, England, July 5 (AP)—John B. Kelly, Jr., won the diamond sculls of the Royal Henley regatta today to climax a 26-year campaign of revenge that started when his father was denied the right to compete in the 1920 event because he once was a bricklayer.

The 20-year-old University of Pennsylvania student defeated Carl Fronsdal of Norway, by eight lengths in 8 minutes and 49 seconds.

Young Kelly, who lead every inch of the 1870 yards, even wore a copy of the green cap his father sent in derision to King George V after he was barred under the since-repealed rule that athletes who had worked with their hands could not compete.

The elder Kelly, his wife and two daughters were among those who saw the race.

It was all Kelly. The announcer on the public address system even commented that "Kelly is so far ahead that he is turning around to hear the applause from the bank."

"I'm the happiest guy in the world and I hope my dad is just as happy," said the winner as he pulled up at the dock.

The father, an Olympic sculling champion in 1920 and 1924, was the first to shake the winner's hand, declaring, "I have been dreaming of this day for years."

While they posed for photographers many of the spectators booed. Apparently the fact that the Kelly family brought 125 pounds of American food with them and were photographed with cases of edibles not obtainable in Britain did not please British rowing fans.

In an all-American final, Kent School of Kent, Ct., defeated Tabor Academy of Marion, Mass., by two lengths in the Thames Challenge Cup.

The winner's time for the mile and 550 yards was 7 minutes 22 seconds.

Kent's crew which moved into the All-America final by defeating the Dublin University eight in a semifinal, outweighed the Massachusetts team by thirteen pounds perman and used that advantage to lead throughout the race.

Tabor advanced earlier today by defeating by outstroking Emmanuel College of Cambridge, England. Tabor's time was 7 minutes 33 seconds, while Kent was clocked in 7 minutes 29 seconds for its semifinal victory.

In the final Kent started with a powerful 41 beat and was ahead by three yards at the halfway mark. Tabor never was able to catch up and gradually fell back.

The victors reached the Fowley halfway point in three minutes, 31 seconds and, despite their margin of triumph, finished 24 seconds off the record.

It was the third time the Connecticut school had won the trophy.

Bill Chapman, the little Kent coxswain, got his first taste of Thames water when his jubilant teammates gave him the traditional heave-ho immediately after the victory.

Stranahan Wins Britons In Vain Fight

LONDON, July 5 (AP)—Frank Stranahan, youthful Toledo, O., amateur, won his way back into the hearts of the sports-loving British today by virtue of a gallant finish one stroke behind winner Fred Daly in the British open golf championships.

Almost to a man, leading sports writers showered praise on the wealthy linksman although many had been harshly critical of him in the past, some accusing him of poor sportsmanship.

Stranahan's great try won the headlines in some morning papers even though the British, jealous of their golfing reputations, found their prestige bolstered by Daly, a Belfast professional.

The Ohioan needed a two on the 72nd hole yesterday to tie the dapper Ulsterman, who was already being acclaimed as the winner.

He was playing over the trying final hole of the Hoylake course, one of the most difficult in golf. And there was a wind. His tee shot left him 150 yards from the green, and the thousands in the gallery wrote him off as beaten.

But Stranahan didn't.

He chose a niblick, eyed the distant hole and got off an almost perfect stroke.

The ball pitched onto the green, and rolled on and on. It "looked" into the hole—and stopped.

His final score: 150-72-72-294. Daly's: 143-78-72-293.

"Stranahan's effort was beyond a doubt the greatest thing in the championship," said the Times of London.

Said the Daily Herald: "Most spectacular finish ever known in the championships."

"In some ways Stranahan was the real hero of the day," wrote British Walker cup player Leonard Crawley in the Daily Telegraph.

No one here recalled—on paper—the hullabaloo the British raised when Frank fired a talkative caddy on the spot in the 1946 amateurs—or when an opponent conceded one of his putts by holing it in the '47 tournament and Stranahan called for a ruling.

Yanks, Dodgers 'Home' If July 4th Myth Holds

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn will meet the Yankees in the World Series according to the pleasant myth that accept the July 4th evening standings as an infallible guide of things to come.

Myth is the word for it as far as the National League is concerned for only four times in the last 10 years has it worked out that way.

In fact, Brooklyn fans have learned to disregard the whole thing through bitter experience. This is the sixth time in the last eight years that the Dodgers have been leading the parade at this stage. The 1941 pennant is the only flag that has waved over Flatbush since 1920.

American League clubs have been more consistent in their mythology. The last six July 4 leaders have clicked home first in September and nine of the last 10, counting 1938 when the Yankees, the eventual winners, were tied with Cleveland.

A year ago the Red Sox led by 6½ lengths and it may be that the Yankees will go on to win more easily than they did. With a 7½ game edge and a red hot streak going, New York is in a most favorable position to make a runaway of it.

Dodger fans need look back only one year to learn the weakness of their position. In 1946 they were out front by seven ball games and the Cards were but a distant menace. Memories of their torrid finish, resultant playoff series with Brooklyn and ultimate World Series win are too fresh around Ebbets Field to encourage any early series reservations.

The Cards, it might be wise to note, are in a better position than they were last summer, five games back, although they are tied with Chicago for fourth place.

A pair of Dodger wins over New York were necessary to keep them in first place up to this very hour because the Braves, crowding close, won a pair from the faltering Phillies moving to within one game of the top.

Brooklyn put on a show to partly retaliate for their 19-2 thumping Wednesday when they piled up a 16-7 edge over the Giants in the morning game at Ebbets Field.

Harry Taylor squeezed home past Mort Cooper in the afternoon tilt, 4-3, on Gene Hermanski's pinch single following Johnny Jorgenson's double in the ninth. Cooper enlivened the proceedings by smashing a homer, the Giants' 35th in 15 consecutive games for a new league record. He also stopped Jackie Robinson's hitting streak at 21 games.

The Cards continued to play inconsistently, shutting out Chicago, 7-0, on Red Munger's three-hitter but then blowing the second, 5-4, to remain deadlocked with the Cubs. Howie Pollet was belted out in the third with his eighth loss.

Cincinnati, which might become a surprise factor in the race, continued to move with a double win over Pittsburgh, 8-0, behind Ewell Blackwell, and 6-4 behind reliefer Harry Gumbert.

It was the 14th win for Blackwell and his 12th in succession.

The Yankees ran their win streak to five by downing Washington twice, 7-3 and 4-2. Spud Chandler hit a homer to help himself to a ninth win in the opener and Joe DiMaggio's triple started a game winning rally in the eighth of the second that went to Joe Page on some brilliant relief pitching.

Detroit took a 13-6 walloping from Cleveland and then just managed to hold on for a 4-4 tie in the second game, called by agreement at the end of the ninth. The Tigers are virtually tied with Philadelphia for second but hold a slim edge, .5224 to .5217, by carrying the percentage to four figures. Seven homers were belted in the opener, two each by Eddie Robinson, Joe Gordon and Eddie Lake and one by Ken Keltner.

The last-place St. Louis Browns thumped Chicago, 10-2, after losing the opener, 6-3, with Jeff Heath's hitting featuring both games. Big Jeff made five hits and drove in seven runs. His two homers, one with the bases full, were his 12th and 13th of the year.

WHAT THE STARS DID

By the Associated Press

JACKIE ROBINSON, Dodgers—His 2-game hitting streak was snapped by Mort Cooper in second game of double Brooklyn victory over Giants after he had kept it alive with a score-tying single in the morning tilt.

JOHNNY MIZE, Giants—Collected only one hit, a single in the opener, in eight official trips against Brooklyn pitching.

HANK GREENBERG, Pirates—Singled as pinchhitter for Elmer Singleton in first game defeat; played first base and singled twice in second game 6-4 loss to Cincinnati.

TED WILLIAMS, Red Sox—Walked twice, fanned, grounded out twice and flied out in first game; collected 88th walk and three consecutive singles in second game.

JOE DIMAGGIO, Yankees—Went hitless against Early Wynn in opener but hammered Walt Masterson for triple and two singles in nightcap, scoring tie-breaking run after tripling in eighth.

Doby Joins Indians

CHICAGO, July 5 (AP)—Larry Doby, the American League's first Negro player, arrived from Newark, N. J., today and was greeted by Pres. Bill Veeck of the Cleveland Indians, who escorted him to Comiskey Park to sign an Indian contract.

Veeck said it was up to Manager Lou Boudreau to decide when Doby would be used in the Indian lineup, but the club president indicated that the Negro might not be used for a day or two.

"We don't like to take the boy off the train and stick him right in the lineup," Veeck said. "He probably is very nervous. We don't want to hurt his chances."

Veeck said the Tribe had scouted both Doby and Jackie Robinson, now playing with the Brooklyn Doodgers in the National League, and "we're convinced that Doby was the better player, at least the better hitter." He added:

"To me, Negro players are inevitable in the majors, so why wait? There was a lot of pressure on Robinson when he broke into the majors early this year. There will be a little less, perhaps, on Doby, and after that Negro players may find it a lot easier, although they will really have to show major league ability."

'Do Nothing' Policy On Illegal Fishing

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

For several strange reasons, the Massachusetts Division of Marine Fisheries appears to be about as active as a frozen firecracker, and apparently has adopted a "do nothing" policy at a time when illegal fishing is being carried on under the very noses of coastal wardens.

A few weeks ago this writer first reported that hook trawlers were at work in the ship channels of Quincy Bay, boldly plying their trade in Portuguese Cove, off Peddock's Island, and other spots. We also gave the actual license numbers of two craft to the division—yet not one coastal patrol boat has been seen since in Quincy Bay. And the hook trawlers still operate.

As every striper angler is now aware, seining of bass is rampant off Cape shores, the market flooded with thousands of pounds of this species. To date, there have been no convictions, although Gov. Bradford recently signed a bill making such seining illegal.

We wonder when the Division of Marine Fisheries is going to wake up—and so do hundreds of local sportsmen, who are disguested with conditions. In view of present happenings, it seems a pity that the recent bill, which called for a complete reorganization of the State Conservation Dept., wasn't passed.

In the meantime, rod and gun writers are being avalanched with calls and reports from irate anglers. We suggest phoning the Marine Fisheries Division, Capitol 4600, just to see if you receive an answer.

ANGLING ANGLERS: Word from the Red Top Bait Co., Buzzards Bay, reveals that Joe Romanowski and Mike Virginski took a 28-pound and a 20-pound striper, respectively, using Atom plugs; this week . . . Sales of fish and game licenses in New Hampshire have hit a new high, running over $555,000, an increase of almost $100,000 from last year's revenue. Plans for expanding hunting and fishing facilities in the Granite State are under way, justified by the added sale of licenses . . . Good trout fishing has been reported in the Deerfiled river, recently, in the western part of the state, where waters are at a normal depth.

Some of N. E.'s Finest Golfers Came From Merrimack Valley

By JACK CONWAY, JR.

The Merrimack Valley Country Club in Methuen, which will be the site of third qualifying round of the Hearst New England Junior golf championship Monday, has a mighty links heritage. Some of the finest golfers in New England have gotten their starts in past Hearst tournaments staged at Merrimack Valley.

Club Mgr. Dan O'Connell sat on the bench outside of the Merrimack Valley pro shop and began to reminisce about some of these former greats.

"I remember the first Hearst Junior round which was played at Merrimack Valley back in 1936," said O'Connell. "That year an unknown youngster named Mel Demarais of United Shoe reported early in the morning for the round. He completely upset the pre-tournament figures by besting the most noted of all the local golfers."

Today Mel is one of the most prominent amateurs in N. E.

"Then there was Everett Stuart," continued O'Connell "a Hearst champion in 1937. Stuart, playing for the Mount Pleasant C. C. of Lowell, turned in a startling round as he upset the field to take medalist honors.

"Stuart then went to the Hearst N. E. finals at Sandy Burr and was paired with Alexander Windsor, Jr., of Weston. Alex was even par for the out nine, but was still four down as Stuart had toured the route in 32. Phenomenal for Sandy Burr.

"Stuart, who is now the pro at Meadowbrook, went on to be a semi-finalist in the State Juniors in 1938. Later he qualified to represent N. E. in the PGA championships at Oakland Hills, Detroit.

"The late Frank Janasus was another of the better golfers who got his start at Methuen.

"Then there was Larry Sullivan, Jr., the medalist last year. He was all ready to compete in the Hearst N. E. final when he was recalled by the Merchant Marine," concluded O'Connell.

The Merrimack Valley pro, Aleck Hackney, will start the young stars on the qualifying round at 8:30 Monday. Louis Congo, the caddy master, and also a former Hearst champion, will be on hand to give Hackney a lift.

The fourth qualifying round of the Hearst is set for Wachusett Country Club at West Boylston, Friday, July 11. The eight qualifiers from each club sponsoring qualifying rounds will assemble at Woodland for the N. E. match-play finals, July 28, 29 and 29.

Joe Cronin Subs Wynn for Feller

Joe Cronin, manager of the American league all-star team, announced today that he had designated Early Wynn, right-handed hurler from Washington, to replace ailing fireballer Bob Feller for the all-star game in Chicago July 8.

Wynn has won nine games and lost six for the Senators this season.

Feller, twice a not-hit no run hurler, strained some back muscles recently. His withdrawal came after he consulted physicians.

WEDPORT, N. S., July 5 (AP)—George Morrell of Saugus, Mass. made the first official catch of the tuna angling season which opened yesterday off Nova Scotia's southwest coast, when he boated a 568-pound bluefin after a battle lasting two hours and 18 minutes.

Suffolk, Lincoln to Open Summer Meets Monday

New England was set today to play host to two major horse tracks running in competition for the first time as Suffolk Downs and the new Lincoln Downs track in Rhode Island accepted entries for the eight-race programs Monday. Turf followers will watch closely to see how the handles compare at the two tracks ,and how the R. I. competition will affect Suffolk.

The Eastern Racing Ass'n's 30-day summer meeting at Suffolk, which runs through Aug. 9, gets under way at 2 o'clock with four sprints and four routes featuring the $5000 Weymouth purse, mile a sixteenth for 4-year-olds and upward.

Lincoln Downs, located only four miles from Narragansett Park which closes its 30-day summer meet today, makes its venture into big time thoroughbred racing for the first time with a 42-day meeting. First post is at 2:15 o'clock.

Suffolk's summer meeting lists six stakes, topped by the $50,000 added Massachusetts on Wednesday, July 30, richest of all New England stakes, and the $25,000 added Mayflower stakes, closing day.

Opening day at the East Boston oval includes a five and a half furlong race for juvenile fillies of the allowance class and it is possible that included in the entrants will be those eligible for the Betsy Ross.

With the opening of Lincoln Downs, horse followers will see some new N. E. thoroughbreds. At the Rhode Island oval are some horses that will be making their bow in this area.

Dut to the overflow of horses and because the building restrictions had prevented Lincoln from completing sufficient stables for the 42-day meeting, many of the horsemen who have been racing at Gansett will be allowed to continue to use the Gansett barns and van their steeds to Lincoln.

Others will be stabled at Pascoag and van from there.

Franklin End Coach at Yale

NEW HAVEN, Ct., July 5 (AP)—Yale announced today the appointment of Marvin "Preacher" Franklin, 1938 football captain at Vanderbilt University, as end coach of its football team.

Franklin, currently holding a similar position at Temple University, will report to head coach Howie Odell in September. He succeeds Ivan Williamson who resigned to become head coach at Lafayette College.

Franklin, who was graduated from the Yale divinity school in 1942 and formerly was on the freshman coaching staff here, was a Navy chaplain from 1943 to 1946. At Temple, he served as university chaplain in addition to his coaching duties.

Stamford Club Signs Negro Pitching Star

STAMFORD, Conn., July 5 (AP)—The Stamford Colonial Baseball League Club announced today that it had acquired Francisco (Cisco Kid) Sostre, a right-hand pitcher, from the New York Cubans of the Negro National League.

Sostre, a Puerto Rican, will make his initial appearance in a Stamford uniform tonight against the New London Raiders.

Yanks Sweep Net Finals

LONDON, July 5 (INS)—The United States made it three straight in the All-England Tennis Championships at Wimbledon today.

With Queen Mary looking on from the royal box, Margaret Osborne won in women's singles and Jack Kramer and Bob Falkenburg took the men's doubles crown.

Miss Osborne, who comes from San Francisco, captured the All-America women's final from Doris Hart, of Miami, 6—2, 6—4.

Kramer and Falkenburg, also from California, won over Tony Mottram, of England, and Bill Sidwell, of Australia, 8—6, 6—3, 6—3.

Kramer, U. S. champion, on Friday defeated Tom Brown, Jr., of San Francisco, for the men's singles championship, 6—1, 6—3, 6—2.

The latter victory moved Kramer up into the throne occupied last year by Yvon Petra, the Giant Frenchman.

Today, Miss Osborne succeeded Pauline Betz, of Los Angeles, who recently turned pro.

Miss Osborne and Miss Hart both carried big bouquets when they first came into the historic center court to begin their battle in brilliant sunshine before the enthusiastic crowd.

Litwhiler Homers for Braves

By MIKE GILLOOLY

BROOKLYN, July 5—First place was the objective as the Braves moved from the tranquillity of Philadelphia to the bedlam of Brooklyn to encounter the Dodgers, chesty after taking three out of four from the Giants and taking a one-game hold on the National League roof.

Bill Voiselle, who has a strong dislike for the Bums because he's an ex-Giant himself, was the Braves pitcher. Vic Lombardi, little lefthander, was the Dodgers' hurling choice so Billy Southworth, who has a reversible outfield, presented his rightist lineup—nine in a row.

Voiselle pitched a five-hit 4-2 win over the Phils last Sunday for his first win over the regulation nine-inning route. Southworth was hoping for another such exhibition from the large righthander from Ninety Six, South Carolina, who now wears the No. 96 uniform to be, more or less baseball's first "Sandwich Man"—advertising his home town through the big league cities.
